

Please do not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. We used to receive several telemarketing calls every evening, mostly from companies that either wanted us to change our phone company or contract for a credit card from them. Initially these calls were annoying, and eventually they became extremely aggravating. Requesting to be removed from the telemarketer call lists got us no relief. We had to stop answering the phone in the evening. It is ridiculous to be harassed and restricted in your own home! Additionally, as we made it a point to never purchase products or services from any firm that called us at home, their efforts aggravated us and didn't even increase their profit. Since we registered with the Indiana No Call list, we have received less than 5 calls. We have our evening family time back! We would be very disappointed if the protection from Indiana's Telemarketing Privacy law was removed.
